

DISAGREED ON DALY KILLING.

CORONER ACCEPTS VERDICT
CLEARING DETECTIVE.McEvoy's Fatal Shot to Be Considered by the Grand Jury—Strutts Says He Was Played Out Running a Block—Owner of Alleged Stolen Goods Never Found.

A coroner's jury could not agree on a verdict yesterday after the inquest into the death of William Daly. Daly was the eighteen-year-old son of 900 Eighth avenue who was shot on July 27 by Detective Edward McEvoy of the West 125th street police station while trying to make his escape after having been arrested.

A majority and a minority report were brought in, five jurors censuring McEvoy for allowing his prisoner to escape and four exonerating him from all blame. The majority process, known only to the minority at the coroner's office, only the minority report is entered in full in the big book which contains the record of inquests. A supplementary mention is made of the majority report.

After the jury had made its reports Coroner Goldenkranz paroled Detective McEvoy in the custody of his captain pending the action of the Grand Jury, to whom the District Attorney will refer the case.

The chief witnesses were Detectives Black and Horton, who were with McEvoy at the time of the shooting. They told of meeting Daly in a pawnshop at 130th street and Eighth avenue, where his strange behavior aroused their suspicion. They looked into a bundle which he was carrying and found that it contained some clothing and a pair of slippers. This convinced them that he had robbed a flat. They say he admitted his guilt. On their way to the 125th street police station, they tried to escape, they said, and McEvoy, after firing three shots to frighten him into stopping, brought him to a standstill with the bullet which caused his death.

The detectives stated that Daly admitted having looted a flat at 177th street and Bathgate avenue. McEvoy, however, declared that Daly said that the flat was at 43d street and Alexander avenue. The flat has never been located. McEvoy said that he had not been able to find an owner for the articles found in Daly's possession.

"When people come to the police station to examine stolen goods," he said, "they walk out on learning that the stuff has caused a man's death."

McEvoy, in explaining why he shot Daly, said:

"He was a fleet runner and was distancing me. I was tired—not tired, but played out—and I shot. I had run more than a block."

Assistant District Attorney Chadwick asked McEvoy why he had not put the man in the car. McEvoy replied that he did not think of anything but stopping the fugitive.

"I cried, 'Stand your ground!'" said McEvoy. "Bystanders should have known enough to help me."

Several policemen testified to Daly's bad character. One said that the man was arrested for stealing brass a year ago, but had not been convicted. Another said that Daly was a very bad boy. He asserted that the dead boy had been arrested twice, but admitted that he had never arrested him for any offense. He added that he knew a man who said that Daly had stolen his pocketbook.

EXAMINE IMMIGRANTS ABROAD.

Commissioner Sargent Will So Recommend—Suggests Better Facilities Here.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Three important recommendations will be embodied in the forthcoming report of Frank P. Sargent, Commissioner-General of Immigration, as follows:

First—that a law be enacted requiring medical inspection of emigrants at points of embarkation in Europe.

Second—that the Chinese Exclusion Act be strengthened by the assignment of American officials to duty at our consulates in China empowered to examine the certificates of all persons who desire to visit the United States.

Third—that appropriations be made for the erection of additional buildings and providing better facilities for the reception of immigrants at Ellis Island, New York.

A statement made public at the Immigration Bureau today strikingly illustrates, in the opinion of Commissioner Sargent, the necessity for an examination by physicians of the Marine Hospital Service of all persons who desire to emigrate to the United States. In the past year nearly 300 immigrants, suffering from dangerous contagious diseases, have been deported at the expense of the transportation companies which have paid the Government about $30,000 in fines for violations of the law. Of this amount, about $26,000 was collected at the port of New York.

The officials point out that the persons deported by our laws traveled from five to ten days on ships carrying healthy immigrants, who were exposed to contagion, and who were admitted to the United States.

Commissioner Sargent says, therefore, that if prospective immigrants were examined at points of embarkation in Europe an element of danger to the general public health would be removed.

Officials of the Immigration Bureau assert that measures taken to enforce the Chinese exclusion act have worked with great success during the past year, but much of the present labor and annoyance would be removed if Congress adopts the Commissioner's recommendation.

TOWN SOLD FOR $70,000.

Sale Necessary to Satisfy Heirs of the Late Congressman Smith of New Jersey.

MORRIS, N. J., Aug. 9.—In order that a settlement might be made with those interested in the property, the entire town of Smithville was sold yesterday afternoon for $70,000, the purchaser being the H. B. Smith Machine Company.

The transfer includes the large machine shops, all the residences, boarding houses, theatre, stores, etc., except the mansion occupied by Capt. Elton A. Smith and the farm which is leased to ex-Frederick Daniel Ewan.

Expensive litigation was necessary in order that Capt. Smith and his brother and sister might obtain possession of this estate, which their father, Congressman Ezekiah B. Smith, left to a board of trustees, who were to maintain a mechanical school of arts for the benefit of young men.

Leaving Woodstock, Vt., many years ago to locate at Smithville, Ezekiah deserted his wife and children. He met Agnes Gilkerson, a beautiful woman, who became known to society as Mrs. Ewan, during Mr. Smith's stay at the national capital. After his death the lawful wife contested the will and won.

SISTERS ACCUSED OF THEFT.

Women Held on Store Detective's Charge Weep Bitterly.

Mrs. Mary Rice, 32 years old, of 110 East 112th street, and her sister, Mrs. May Adams, 34 years, of 1008 Second avenue, were arrested and taken to the East Sixty-seventh street station yesterday on a charge of shoplifting preferred by George Ostreicher, detective for a Third avenue store.

Ostreicher says that he saw the women wandering through the store, and watched them while they picked up a wristwatch valued at $4.00, a pocketbook worth 75 cents and two sets of sidecombs worth $2 apiece. He called them into the office and had them searched. The goods, he alleges, were found on them. The two women cried bitterly at the station and begged to be released, but Ostreicher refused.

"I let the others go but I can't stand for this," he said. "The police believe that the women are not professional shoplifters. They had none of the regular apparatus."

DEATH AFTER HER VACATION.

Miss Lillian Read Takes Poison in Her Employers' Office.

Lillian Read, 25 years old, a stenographer in the office of Schmidt & Co., 78 Greene street, drank carbolic acid at noon yesterday in the private office of her employers and was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where she died.

Miss Read came to New York from Chicago three years ago. Her employers knew very little about her except that she performed her duties faithfully and capably.

Two weeks ago she went away on her vacation. She returned on Monday, much improved in health, but apparently not as cheerful as usual.

When the other employees of Schmidt & Co. went out to lunch yesterday Miss Read lingered behind. Mr. Schmidt was the first person to return. On trying to enter the private office he discovered that the door was fastened. Climbing on a chair and looking over the transom, he saw Miss Read lying upon the floor.

At St. Vincent's Hospital it was found that Miss Read had a bottle of laudanum hidden in one of her stockings.

Mr. Schmidt told the coroner that the girl's sister lived at 90 Manhattan avenue. The police said the dead girl had lived at 107 West Seventy-third street. At 80 Manhattan avenue and at 107 West Seventy-third street Miss Read was not known. It was said. Later the police of the MacDougal street station said the young woman had lived at 107 West Seventy-second street. There, too, it was said Miss Read was not known, and at 107 West Seventy-fifth street, the address given out at St. Vincent's Hospital, the same answer was given to inquirers.

Up to a late hour last night there had been no order for the removal of the body from the hospital and no coroner's physician had called at the hospital. A young woman, who said she was the dead girl's sister, called to view the body. She said she would return to-day, and went away without leaving any address.

CUT HIS ARTERIES IN JAIL.

Prisoner Fights Hard to Be Allowed to Die by His Own Act.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Aug. 9.—Sam Merzola, who killed his brother with an axe at Huntington on June 21 and then shot his cousin Thomas Curran Pietra and afterward attempted suicide with revolver and knife, tried to kill himself in the county jail last night.

Merzola's attorney called and had a talk with his client. Several hours after that the Italian was found bleeding profusely. He had severed two arteries in his left arm. The wounds were dressed and a bandage had been placed over a piece of iron slat from his cot and reopened the arteries.

He was very weak but he resisted attempts made to bandage his wounds. He was compelled to submit, however, and the flow of blood was stopped. He will be watched closely to prevent another attempt on his life.

CUSTOMS INSPECTOR GALLAGHER WALKS OUT OF FOURTH STORY HOTEL WINDOW.

Thomas C. Gallagher, a probationary Customs House inspector, who lived with his brother at 111 East Eighty-seventh street, dropped from the window of his room on the fourth floor of the Governor Hotel at 55 Whitehall street, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning and landed on his head on the sidewalk. He was instantly killed.

Gallagher frequently stopped at the place when he had to get up early in the morning to meet steamers. He appeared at the hotel Monday night, in company with a friend in the customs service, and telephoned that he would not be home. Then the friend sent for Dr. Amos R. Jenkins of the Merchant Marine Hospital Service to look Gallagher over. He was in a highly nervous condition, and his friend thought he ought to have an opiate. Dr. Jenkins refused to give Gallagher an opiate and advised him to go to bed. Gallagher was a gambler and had frequently met with accidents. At his home precautions were always taken to prevent his falling from the windows. He was 30 years old.

FRANK PLATT MENDING.

His Father to Be Permitted to See Him Tomorrow.

NO 99-YEAR EXTENSION FRANCHISE IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Judge Groscup has decided against the Union Trust Company on its claim that the extension of the city limits extended the lines claimed under the ninety-nine year act. The attorneys for the company in a suit that where a franchise had been given in a street "to the present or future city limits," the extension of the city's territory carried the franchise to the new city limits.

Now that we've straightened up after the suit sale advertised a few days ago, we find that there's just a good big handful left for big men.

Several hundred suits, and most all big sizes, 39 to 46 inch chest.

DREAMED OF BURGLARS, FIRED.

No Wonder, When His Head Was Cut—Negro Caretaker's Deadly Aim.

The tenants of the Bannockburn apartment house, at 126th street and Fifth avenue, were awakened around 3 o'clock yesterday morning by several shots in quick succession fired in the residence of John McLaughlin, a publisher, who lives next door, at 204 Fifth avenue. E. J. Parker, chief engineer of the New York Central Railroad, looked out of the window expecting to see fleeing burglars. Instead, he heard cries of "Murder! Police!"

He had William Lewis, the hallboy, call up Police Headquarters on the telephone. Headquarters notified the East 126th street station, and Policemen Zanki and Hogan were sent to the house on the double quick.

Mr. McLaughlin's residence has a large lawn around it. While the family are at their country home at Rye, N. Y., the house is looked after by Solomon Postles, a negro caretaker. The policeman found Postles standing at the basement door so frightened he could hardly talk. He said there were burglars upstairs and that they had assaulted him. His face was covered with blood, and there was a cut on the side of his nose.

The policeman drew their revolver and night sticks and started upstairs to the parlor where Postles had been sleeping. The entire neighborhood had by this time been aroused. A thorough search of the house revealed no trace of burglars.

When Postles was able to talk coherently he said he was lying in bed when something which felt like a blunt instrument struck him a blow in the face. He had been dreaming about burglars and he grabbed his 38-calibre revolver from under his pillows. He began firing at an object which he thought was standing near his bed.

The policeman turned up the lights in the parlor where Postles slept and all that they could find was that several pieces of plastering had fallen from the ceiling over his head. One of the bullets had shattered a valuable water pitcher, another had broken a large mirror, and a third pierced the right eye of Abraham Lincoln's portrait. The other shots lodged in the ceiling and the side walls.

BOY KILLED BY TROLLEY CAR.

Was Waving His Hand to a Party of Excursionists When He Was Struck.

While on his way to a butcher shop with his four little brothers and sisters, Robert Joyce, the six-year-old son of James M. Joyce, a sanitary inspector in the Bronx, stood on the westbound track of the Union Railway on the White Plains road, opposite 230th street, at Wakefield, to-night to wave his hand at a party of excursionists on an eastbound trolley car. A car bound west hit him and killed him instantly.

Motorman Adell, when he saw the boy in front of his car, reversed the power, but he was too late. The car had to be jacked up to get a wheel off the boy's arm. Mrs. Joyce fainted when she heard of her son's death, and it is feared that she will go insane from grief. Robert was killed within a stone's throw of his home. The motorman was arrested.

OTTMAN HASN'T GOT HIS AUTO.

Attaches French Manufacturer for Amount Paid for It.

Deputy Sheriff Leavitt has received an attachment for $12,000 against De Dietrich & Co., a corporation of France, in favor of Henry J. Ottman of this city, to recover the amount which he says he paid on March 5 for a 40 horse-power motor car to be delivered not later than May 31, and which he has not yet received. The Sheriff served the attachment on the American Express Company, which is believed to have a motor car belonging to the company in transit, and also at the company's office at 1 1/2 West Thirty-fourth street.

Prayer Shawls Under False Bottom.

Charles Tandler, second cabin passenger aboard the Holland-America steamship Noordam, which arrived on Monday from Rotterdam and Boulogne, had a large telescopic valve, one-third of the interior of which was hidden by a false bottom. A customs inspector tore out the bottom and brought forth twenty prayer shawls. Four more shawls of the kind were sewed up in another and a worn shawl. The lot was taken to the prisoners' Store.

August Sale of Upholstery Goods

This important movement affects practically all lines in our Upholstery Store, presenting lace curtains, portieres, couch and table covers, drapery fabrics, furniture and wall coverings, cretonnes and the like, that have been selling until yesterday at regular prices, today at the very decisive concessions that are told of in the list below.

There will be newer goods a month later, of course, but only an expert, familiar with the patterns of different manufacturers, will be able to tell you which are new and which are the patterns of the preceding season. The designs in the lace curtains will be of the same character. The same is true of the style and colorings of the portieres and other draperies. Still it is wisdom on our part to hurry away these small groups before the new stock comes. It is the most decisive economy on the part of the housekeepers to secure these hangings a month or six weeks ahead of the time they need them, while such large savings may be profited by.

You will find here wide variety to select from. And while the largest reductions are on the one and two-pair lots, there are very decisive savings to be made on curtains that you can buy in any quantity you wish. You will be surprised to find how handsome the goods are, and how fresh and complete are the stocks presented during this movement.
